President Lucius A. Snow took charge, singing, "An Angel from on High." Prayer by Brother Lorenzo Snow, which the President later repeated. The Lord's Supper was administered by Elder John D. Peters, who called the Church to order and explained the ordinance.

Elder C. H. Davis was the first speaker, he was a friend of Mr. Smith. He said he had been a friend of Mr. Smith for many years, and that he had known him in the days of his youth. He spoke of the simple qualities of the Prophet, and of the faith that inspired him. He said that Mr. Smith had combined a knowledge of the scriptures with a love for the truth, and that he had never been afraid to speak the truth. He said that Mr. Smith had been a leader to the youth of the Church, and that he had been a friend to all.

The choir sang, "Let Judah rejoice."

Elder Emily Davis, the only surviving wife of the Prophet Joseph Smith, bore her testimony to the truthfulness of the Gospel, and the validity of the ordinances. She spoke of the Prophet's teachings, and of the importance of the ordinances. She said that the Prophet had taught that the ordinances were necessary for the salvation of the soul, and that they were a way of obtaining the favor of the Lord.
