I was told that there was no place to stay and that it was better to continue on.

I was walking along the road when I came upon a small village. I asked for a place to stay, but no one seemed to care. I continued walking until I came upon a small house. The owner seemed friendly and offered me a place to stay for the night.

The next day, I was able to find a job. I worked hard and was able to save enough money to continue on my journey.

I continued to walk for many miles, always careful to avoid the dangers that lay ahead. I was determined to reach my destination and I knew that I could do it with hard work and determination.
married by Dr. John C. Bennett in the house of Joseph Colston Platt. We lived at my father's for awhile, and then we moved in the house with Colston Platt, and while living there our first son, William Fanning, was born on the 13\textsuperscript{th} day of October, 1842. When I was very sick, he would not set up. The child came near dying. They said the child would die for sixty minutes, but he was saved. My wife was very small, and not realizing the consequences she done, her washing when the child was one week old, she took cold, and it settled into her breast. Father came, and wanted us to go to his house to live, so we went, and she had the worst broken breast I ever saw. I have heard Father tell people about it, and said it was as big as an iron sea-cattle, and nearly as black. Oh! if our troubles were lived the way until I built a small brick house out of the Temple, I paid $150.00 for a small lot, and built a small brick house on it, and then only got $25.00 for it when we had to leave. Father, we had a very hard time to get along with some working and persecution, as to the persecution of the Church, "see Church History." I remember once I had bought some Kentucky flax to make me a coat, and I had to sell it to get some Bread, after the Temple was finished sufficiently to give endowments and help.

There's always been a great endowment, and not tell after we had two children, (1843) nothing particular, transferred in 1843. I don't know whether it is true or not, that I remember saying to my mother, only hard work, and hard living, and persecution, I was present one time when Joseph was preaching, and he said if he should tell all the Lord had revealed to him, some should sick his life, says he even as good as
