

Plural Marriages not in George D. Smith's, "Nauvoo Roots of Mormon Polygamy"

All rights reserved. February 1996. This document may be freely distributed, as long as it includes this notice and no alterations are made to the text.

The Spring 1994 issue of Dialogue: A Journal of Mormon Thought contained George S. Smith's excellent article on the origins and expansion of plural marriage in Nauvoo in the 1840s. He also included an extensive listing of known Nauvoo polygamists and their wives.

Smith consulted a wide variety of sources to compile this list. Apparently one source he did not consult is the typescript of the Book of Anointings (the original in the LDS Church Archives is restricted). These selections have been widely circulated for a number of years.

The typescript indicates that there were a few additional men who had wives anointed to them, indicating that the women were also married (sealed) to them, who do not appear in Smith's article. The typescript usually only includes the women's given name (presumably the original is the same). I have attempted to more fully identify the women named in typescript. The following names do not appear in Smith's list:
